Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Roy (4,225,678), alone, or in view of Tzeng et al.(5,965,626).

Roy discloses process for preparing asphaltic foams prepared by preparing molten asphalt and combining it with urethane forming reactants, blowing agent, surfactants, catalysts, and other materials at index values meeting those as claimed (see the entire document).

Roy differs from applicants' claims in that the order of mixing the asphalt component is not so specified as to require addition to the isocyanate component first. However, Roy (see column 3 lines 1-9) specifies adding the molten asphalt component to the reactive and non-reactive components so as to enable forming a polymeric product. Accordingly, it would have been obvious for one having ordinary skill in the art to have added the asphaltic component of Roy to any of the components disclosed first during the processing operations for the purpose of providing the asphaltic component within the polymeric foam forming materials with the expectation of success in order to arrive at the processes of applicants' claims in the absence of a showing of new or unexpected results. Additionally, M.P.E.P. 2144.04 IV. C. recites that it has been held that selection of any order of mixing ingredients is prima facie obvious (see also In re Gibson, 39 F.2d 975, USPQ 230 (CCPA 1930)).

Roy differs from applicants' claims relating to molded part forming recitations in that it does not recite particulars as to forming molded parts from their preparations. However, Tzeng et al. discloses operations for forming a roofing tile or ridge cap wherein a conveyor belt is provided, a granule layer is applied to said belt, a mold comprising a boundary area is then provided with top side open, the molding area is filled with asphaltic foam forming material, the mold area is then covered with a top mold portion, and the materials are cured to form the desired parts. Accordingly, it would have been obvious for one having ordinary skill in the art to have employed the processing operations of Tzeng et al. in employment of the materials of Roy for the purpose of making useable roofing products from the processes of Roy so as to arrive at the processes of applicants' claims with the expectation of success in the absence of a showing of new or unexpected results.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Doyle and Colafati are cited for disclosures of asphaltic compositional make-ups and rigid foam roofing products, respectively, which are relevant to the instant concerns.
